

Trinity Flexagons!

1. Print off the flexagon pattern.

2. Cut out the two sides and arrange them like so. You need to stick them back-to-back to make one piece...

...so that the finished piece looks like this. I've turned over the corner to show you the start of how it looks on the back

3. It helps to fold along the lines so that the next part is easier.

4. Fold so your piece looks like this,

5. Then fold again to look like this...

Bring the blank flap up from underneath and place over the yellow section.

6. Glue the white sections together and your piece should now look like this.

The green section represents Jesus- the baby and star indicate the incarnation and the other picture indicates the crucifixion and resurrection.

The yellow section represents God the father- a crown for his Kingship and a globe to indicate his creation.

The red section represents the Holy spirit and shows flames and a dove.

To flex the flexagon, push like so and open out to reveal the next picture. It will take some practice, but you will get the hang of it!
